Invitation

You are invited to participate in a study of vibrant, flourishing churches and how they enliven their ministry.

The study is being conducted by Dr Ruth Powell and Dr Miriam Pepper from NCLS Research and the Public and Contextual Theology Research Centre, Charles Sturt University and Kathy Jacka from NCLS Research.

Before you decide whether or not you wish to participate in this study, it is important for you to understand why the research is being done and what it will involve. Please take the time to read the following information carefully and discuss it with others if you wish.

What is the purpose of this study?

The purpose of the project is to understand how churches that are flourishing have developed their vitality, so that other churches can learn from and be encouraged by them. Previous research has focused on assessments of church vitality and descriptions of vital churches. This research aims to dig deeper, asking how churches became vital.

Why have I been invited to participate in this study?

NCLS Research has identified your church as a vital church, according to results from the 2016 National Church Life Survey. Your church was strong on at least four of the following five measures of vitality: the religiousness of the congregation or parish; strength of relationship within and beyond the church; agency or capacity to take action; the proportion of newcomers attending the church; and the proportion of young adults attending the church. NCLS Research invites you, as a senior leader (clergy person or lay leader) to take part in an online survey to offer a perspective on the vitality of your church.

What does this study involve?

The study involves two components: 1) case studies of 16 vital churches, involving interviews and discussion groups with various church leaders, and 2) an online survey of senior leaders from other vital churches. If you agree to participate, you will be asked to take part in an online survey consisting of a series of open-ended questions. The survey should take you around 45-60 minutes to complete. You do not need to complete the survey in one sitting. You can save this survey and return to it at any time. You will be asked:

- Your perspective on the health of your church currently; a narrative of the past few years of growing health and vitality in your church; actions the church took to build vitality; motivations or situations that led to actions; contributing factors that may have helped your church to flourish; leadership strategies that may have been effective; wisdom and learning you would share with others.

Are there risks and benefits to me in taking part in this study?

There will be no benefit to you in participating in this research, other than encouragement to you that the researchers have identified your church as one that is flourishing and satisfaction that you may gain from knowing that through this project your experiences may help other churches.

The risks involved in participating in this project are low. This study is a positive one, about how churches are flourishing and how they have become so. It is possible that you may recall challenges in ministry as you complete the survey that cause you discomfort. You may wish to access your usual pastoral support or supervisory arrangements if this occurs. You may withdraw from the study at any time.

How is this study being paid for?

The project is an initiative of and draws on resources from NCLS Research, with additional funding from two foundations: Genesis Foundation and Yajilarra Trust. The Genesis Foundation and Yajilarra Trust provide seed capital and strategic support to Christian churches and ministries. Neither body has input into the research results or the conduct of the research.

Will taking part in this study cost me anything, and will I be paid?

There will be no reimbursements or payments to participants in this study.

What if I don't want to take part in this study?

Participation in this research is entirely your choice. Only those people who give their informed consent will be included in the project. Whether or not you decide to participate, is your decision and will not disadvantage you.

If you choose to participate in the study, you may choose not to answer specific questions that are put to you in the survey.

What if I participate and want to withdraw later?

You may withdraw from the study and withdraw your survey data up until four weeks after the survey closing date.

How will my confidentiality be protected?

Any information collected by the researchers which might identify you will be stored securely and only accessed by the researchers unless you consent otherwise, except as required by law. There are limits on assurances of confidentiality as law may subpoena research data/records.

You are asked to give your consent to being personally identified in project outputs – that is, to consent to information that you provide in your survey being attributed to you and your church.

Data will be retained for at least 5 years at the offices of NCLS Research.

What will happen to the information that I give you?

The results from this study will be reported in the following project outputs:

- Church-friendly resources sharing the stories of flourishing churches to encourage and equip church leaders, provided to over 3,000 local churches across Australia

- Workshops and/or webinars around Australia for local church leaders on the findings of the project and practical stories and strategies they can learn from
- Presentation to the Religious Research Association/Society for the Scientific Study of Religion conference
- Research paper/s published by NCLS Research.

The information that you provide will be used in two ways: 1) to expand on the findings from the case study component of the research, and 2) to share your church's particular story in church-friendly resources.

You will be given the opportunity to review or edit your contributions prior to publication as follows. Case study writeups and all sections of the research report and resources where you and your local church are identified will be sent to you for review prior to finalisation. You will be given four weeks to provide comment.

You will receive a copy of the resources and research papers that are prepared from the research.

What should I do if I want to discuss this study further before I decide?

If you would like further information, contact Dr Ruth Powell, rpowell@ncls.org.au, phone 02 9139 2525, or visit <http://www.ncls.org.au/research/enliven-project>.

Who should I contact if I have concerns about the conduct of this study?

Charles Sturt University's Human Research Ethics Committee has approved this project. If you have any complaints or reservations about the ethical conduct of this project, you may contact the Committee on (02) 6933 4213 or ethics@csu.edu.au, and quote reference H19094. Any issues you raise will be treated in confidence and investigated fully, and you will be informed of the outcome.

Conclusion

Thank you for considering this invitation. This information sheet is for you to keep.
